SciBase strengthens the US organization with experienced leader in dermatology

STOCKHOLM, SVERIGE, 13 June 2024 – SciBase Holding AB ("SciBase") [STO: SCIB], SciBase, a leading developer of AI-based solutions for skin diseases, today announces that Leda Beaty has been appointed Head of US Commercial Operations.

SciBase is pleased to announce that Leda will be heading the US commercial operations. With an extensive background in sales and commercialization across pharmaceutical, medical devices and biotechnology she brings over 27 years of experience to this pivotal role. Leda joins from DermTech Inc., a skin cancer detection company, where she was Senior National Director, responsible for creating partnerships with leading clinicians, building strategic partnerships and market expansion in dermatology.

Her expertise spans startup environments and the successful launches of products at renowned companies including Aventis, Amgen, Arthrex and DermTech. Leda has concentrated her efforts in the field of dermatology. Her experience in launching and driving sales of new products and technologies, building winning teams in the US dermatology market as well as experience in cost reimbursement in the US, will be key to driving SciBase US sales and market establishment forward.

"We see Leda's experience as instrumental for driving growth and making SciBase successful in the U.S. as we build on the base we have now created for further expansion", says Pia Renaudin, CEO of SciBase.
